A Third New Volume in the

"SEE AMERICA FIRST" SERIES

Sunset Canada: British Columbia and Beyond

By Archie Bell, Author of "The Spell of China," "The Spell of Egypt," etc.

A shrewdly observant and illuminating treatment of that Wonderland of the West, BRITISH COLUMBIA. Mr. Bell gives vivid accounts of the hunting and fishing, the Indian life of the Province, the fur trading of the Hudson Bay Company, the mining, railroading, and, best of all, the gorgeous scenic beauty of the land.

NEW HARPER BOOKS

THE WINNING OF THE WAR

By ROLAND G. USHER, Ph.D.

Are you a pessimist about the war? Here is optimism for pessimistic people. This clear-sighted book comes at an opportune moment when the American army is entering the trenches. Here is an analyses of the situation, showing the true basis of apprehension, and pointing out the victory which will ultimately belong to the Allies.

SOCIAL DEMOCRACY EXPLAINED

By JOHN SPARGO.

By the author of "Americanism and Social Democracy" and "The Bitter Cry of the Children." His withdrawal from the Socialist party and his pronounced patriotism have emphasized again Mr. Spargo's place as a writer for men and women of his own beliefs. The present volume is not controversial; it is a simple exposition of the Socialist theories and tactics by a liberal Socialist who is also an American.

THE REAL FRONT

By ARTHUR HUNT CHUTE, Late First Canadian Division.

An inner story of the war written by a man who was not only an officer who saw much active service with the field artillery and was wounded at the Somme, but had already been trained as a war correspondent in the Balkan and Mexican campaigns. His book deals with the hidden things, not merely within the trenches, but within the hearts of the men who were his companions.

Illustrated. Post 8vo. Cloth $1.50 net.

THE PANAMA PLOT

By ARTHUR B. REEVE.

Here is another Craig Kennedy book! The famous detective takes his scientific knowledge to South America, where he discovers many strange plots. Jealous women, murderers, thieves, and smugglers—all pass before him in an endless string and he rejoices in his new field of work.

Frontispiece. Post 8vo. Cloth. $1.40, net.

CONFESSIONS OF THE CZARINA

By COUNT PAUL VASSILI.

Here is a book of revelations telling the story of the Czarina of Russia—not as the public know her, but as she was known in her home, surrounded by her family. Beginning with her life as a young princess-bride, this book brings events right up to the present time, bringing in the Czarina's own love story and Count Orloff's suicide.

Portraits. Crown 8vo. Cloth $2.00, net.

THE GIRL IN HIS HOUSE

By HAROLD MACGRATH.

A tale of New York, filled with all the mystery that hung about the tales of a Thousand Nights. James Armitage, after traveling abroad for some time, comes home to find his house lighted up—and a strange beautiful girl at the window! Who was she? Let Harold MacGrath tell you!

HOW TO SELL MORE GOODS

SECRETS OF SUCCESSFUL SALESMANSHIP

By H. J. BARRETT.

Do you know the full secret of salesmanship? This book is written out of the experiences of many salesmen. The writer approaches the subject in a perfectly simple way, as two men might discuss the problem in a Pullman car. No business man can afford to do without it.

GASLIGHT SONATAS

By FANNIE HURST

Frivolous or sublime, these stories in "Gaslight Sonatas" again fulfill the prediction that Fannie Hurst is the O. Henry of to-day. In them she portrays characters of all types. The department-store clerk in one suffers from her companions' ridicule because of the attentions of a rich man's son. In another a boarding-house keeper and her daughter try to deceive each other unselfishly. Another has a characteristic Fannie Hurst theme, the story of a girl who bribed her husband, whom she detested, to play with her the comedy of a happy married life in order not to destroy her mother's illusions.

The Most Vital War Book of the War

THE GLORY OF THE TRENCHES

AN INTERPRETATION OF WAR

By LIEUT. CONINGSBY DAWSON

Author of "Carry On: Letters in Wartime"

(Now in its Twentieth Edition)

¶ Laughing and cheering they go up to the front and over the top. And then, drenched and sodden, smashed in body but whole in spirit, they travel the road to Blighty—home! Lieut. Coningsby Dawson knows the agony of that journey—and the wonderful exaltation of it! He made it on a stretcher, wounded and battered, from a front line trench to a London hospital.

¶ "Their religion is the religion of heroism, which they have learned in the glory of the trenches." What that glory is, how it lays hold of every true man, what it really means to be at the front in the greatest war of all the ages is most vividly told in this vital and inspiring book.

THE ONLY RATING BOOK DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO THE BOOK TRADE

¶ Every big industry in the country, EXCEPT, Book Publishing, has for years had its own Rating Book covering its OWN PARTICULAR FIELD, and devoted exclusively to its own special needs. Book Publishers on the other hand, have been compelled to use bulky Rating Books embracing multitudinous other lines in which they are in no way interested, and in which the Book Trade played a most insignificant part. Book Publishers have felt this keenly.

¶ At the suggestion of several, the great task of establishing such an individual service for the Book Publishing Trade has been taken up, and after months of endeavor, the very FIRST RATING BOOK EVER DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO THE BOOK TRADE IS READY FOR DELIVERY. This new Rating Book has been compiled by Credit Experts of seventeen years experience and should be on the desk of every Credit Man and Sales Manager and in the pocket of every Book Salesman

¶ There are about 6,000 names listed, all rated; first, as to their capital; second, their standing in the trade; third, how they pay their bills. Street addresses are given in large cities. NO CONCERNS ARE LISTED EXCEPT THOSE THAT HANDLE BOOKS, but the list contains not only the general book stores, but also all Department, Stationery, General, Drug and Jewelry stores which have a book department. It is a question of but a short time when this Rating Book, Reporting and Collection Service will be accepted as the STANDARD in the Book Trade.

A Remarkably Strong War Novel

The Blond Beast

By Robert Ames Bennet

A world of prosperity and peace. Suddenly the red sun rises. The beauty that once was Louvain crumbles beneath Prussian guns. The fair fields—the quaint Old World towns of Flanders and France are engulfed by the massive Gray Flood that sweeps onward to deluge and overwhelm European civilization.

Such is the background of The Blond Beast. Woven into this novel of war on a colossal scale is a thrilling story of American youth—a story big with romance, with love, with a fine, outstanding Americanism.

MONEY BEHIND THE MEN

THE treatment of Russia and Roumania in the so-called peace "made in Germany," and particularly the attempt by Germany to hand over Russian Armenia to the Turk, have clinched the belief that the only road to a righteous and enduring peace is to win the war. The greatest battle in all history has passed its first stage, and the onrush of the enemy hosts has been stayed before Amiens, as it was stayed before Venice and before Paris at the Marne. Our own boys are on the march to the front to take the part of America in what may be the decisive struggle of the war. It is for us who stay at home to back them with the sinews of war, our money. The book-trade has not been behind in doing its share of this work, and to every fresh call the cheerful answer must be, "Ready!"

The Treasury has found that it will not spend for the fiscal year as much as estimated, and the excess profits and income taxes are piling up beyond the estimate. It is happy bookkeeping when the outgo is less and the income more than expected. In consequence the Treasury asked but three billion dollars for the new Liberty Loan, for which the drive begins to-day. This will be at the good rate of 4¼ per cent, with the earlier issues convertible into the new bonds. It is a good investment in principal and interest. If there is any organization in the world whose soundness is unshakable it is the United States. The excess profits returns show that the country made money in abundance, despite all adverse conditions, in 1917. On the average, only a small modicum of this profit has gone to the Government in taxes. Out of the rest should come the prompt, cheerful and complete response for the Third Liberty Loan.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the remarkable organizing work by which the thrift stamp, the war savings stamp and the Liberty Loan each fit together into a complete financing system to cover that part of war expenses not paid for as we go by present taxes. The 25c. thrift stamp makes every boy and girl who can save pennies and every person who can earn quarters a possible partner with the Government in the great work of the war. When sixteen of these stamps have been pasted on the certificate blank, this $4, with the added cents in cash, will purchase the war savings stamp which at maturity will be worth $5. When 20 of these stamps are pasted on the certificate blank a Liberty Bond for $100 can be bought by the addition of the unaccrued interest. Then the boy or girl, man or woman, begins to do the full share of standing behind our men, each with his money, and it is with the sinews of war behind the men that the war must be won.

The whole country has been well organized to push simultaneously the drives for these several classes of investment, and the book-trade should more and more co-operate in each direction. In New York for instance, the committee headed by Frederick A. Stokes has charge of the thrift and war savings stamps campaign, and the committee headed by Charles Scribner has charge of the Liberty Loan campaign. These two should not conflict, for they are intended to reach thru publishing and bookselling concerns three separate classes—the stamps, those who can save only little by little, the bonds, the people higher up in the book-trade who can afford such investment, and third and last the business concerns themselves, which may thus invest any permanent or even temporary surplus in a sure bond paying good interest, which can be used at the bank as the best security for loans. Never before and in no other country in the world has a better financing system been evolved.

We bespeak from the trade thruout the country and especially in the great metropolitan center and in the other cities cordial support of the trade committees in this endeavor. In New York Mr. Stokes is endeavoring to increase the number of business concerns within the trade which will guarantee to take for themselves and their employees $830 worth of stamps, which will mean $1000 at maturity. The New York quota of stamps, as Mr. Stokes has already stated, is $40,000. There was no special trade organization for the First Liberty Loan; for the Second Loan the committee headed by Mr. Scribner with the help of two prominent periodical publishing houses raised $1,650,000; for the Third Loan the committee hope that with the inclusion of the periodical, printing and allied trades this amount will be outreached. Let the New York trade set the country an example, and may the book-trade thruout the country outstrip New York by doing even better in proportion!

THE questionnaire sent out to book publishers by the Federal Trade Commission, which we reprint elsewhere, is intended to lay a foundation for handling the paper question with full knowledge. The Government has been wise thruout the present emergency in seeking the knowledge and asking the help of non-official committees in the work at home toward winning the war—and here is a good example. The publishing and bookselling business is an essential industry in these war times, because it gives our people the permanent material on which to base its intelligent support of the war as well as the recreative reading needed to keep up our spirits. In England, the publishers have done a special service to the Government and the Army by the many series of service editions of good reading published at low prices for the benefit of the soldiers. It is, therefore, the more surprising to know that there is even talk in England of suppressing the publishing business in whole or in part as a non-essential industry. In America the supply of reading for our soldiers has been recognized thoroly by the War Department, and now particularly by General Pershing, as an essential for keeping up the morale of our soldiers. And it is the moral efficiency of the Allied forces as against the militarist efficiency of our enemies that will prove the most important factor in securing the final peace for which the war is the only present means.

WITH this issue Mr. Robert Lynd leaves the editorial service of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to accept a position on the publishing staff of the Atlantic Monthly Company. His associates and the many friends he has made in the book-trade of New York regret that he leaves the metropolis for the Hub and bespeak from the Boston book-trade the cordial welcome which they know he will earn in his new relations. It is to be hoped that Mr. Ellery Sedgwick, who has succeeded in renewing the old prominence and success of the Atlantic Monthly, will succeed, with the help of the staff he is gathering about him, and in friendly co-operation with the historic publishing houses of Boston, in making St. Botolph's town again the literary and publishing rival of the city which he has robbed of himself and other worthy associates.

SOME REMEDIES FOR "PLEASE CANCEL MY ORDER"

The book-trade is peculiarly burdened with the "please cancel my order" and "please take my over-stock off my hands" problem. Something of how these requests from retailers are being handled in other lines is described in the following suggestive article from a recent number of "Printers' Ink."

THE thing that makes sales managers tear their hair is to have customers write in something like this:

"Since placing an order with you for the delivery of goods January 1, we find that we are overbought on this line. Please cancel this order and oblige."

The sales manager is likely to swallow the cancelation with what grace he may, inditing an acceptance with disappointment carefully camouflaged, but the salesman himself gets the benefit of the vitriol which could not be spilled safely in the direction of the customer.

"Why don't you sell these goods right?" the man who took the order is likely to be asked. "If this buyer had been thoroly sold on the line, he would not have canceled; he would have wanted to buy more. As soon as you are out of sight, he gets cold feet and tells us not to ship. Do you call that sales work?"

Then again there is the situation where the customer, after having been enthused by the salesman to the point of placing a bigger order than usual, is dismayed when the goods arrive, and immediately decides that he isn't going to be able to unload on the unsuspecting consumers of his vicinity. Or, after having had the stock on hand for a time, he concludes that they are a hopeless proposition, and wants to send them back to the manufacturer for credit.

The salesman is blamed here for not showing the dealer how to merchandise the products, and for not following him up so carefully that he will be thoroly alive to the proper system to use in disposing of the goods.

Sometimes criticisms of this sort are justified, and sometimes they are not. It is certain, however, that salesmen are giving more attention to retail selling at present, to the end that they can assist the merchant who is downcast over the prospects for getting rid of the goods he has ordered or put in stock. Their efforts are having a decidedly beneficial effect on the general situation.

Goods which are returned after having been delivered represent a loss in so many ways—selling expense, packing, cartage, freight, depreciation, etc.—that it is a double victory to prevent the return and then help to move them on to the consumer. Likewise the introduction of retail sales plans that help the dealer to see the possibilities offered by goods the order for which he is preparing to cancel is an advantage in that it conserves all of the effort that has previously been expended in getting the business.

SALESMEN WITH INITIATIVE CAN OFTEN PREVENT LOSS

Just to show how salesmen are rising to their opportunities along this line, consider the experience of a representative of a large dry goods jobbing house of Chicago, who recently reached a small town in South Dakota, where his concern has a number of customers.

The first he called on was Sol Frenkel, dealer in men's furnishings.

"Say, your house made a terrible mistake in its last shipment to us," announced Mr. Frenkel, the moment the robust figure of the salesman loomed in the doorway.

"What's the trouble?" inquired the representative of the jobbing house.

"Why, we sent an order for six dozen night-gowns, and the house shipped us ladies' gowns," was the startling rejoinder.

The salesman did not waste any time trying to convince Mr. Frenkel that he ought to break into the women's wear business, with that shipment of night-gowns as a starter; but he asked the merchant to hold the goods a little while, until he had a chance to see what he could do with them.

Right across the street is the store of Mrs. Hattie Kaufman, who deals exclusively in women's furnishings, and also has an account with the jobbing house.

The salesman laid the case before her.

"These goods were bought some time ago," he explained, "and represent a mighty good buy at the present market. They are priced to sell at retail all the way from $1 to $3.50. Can you use them?"

Mrs. Kaufman decided that she could; and the salesman hoisted the package on his own broad shoulders and carried it across the street to the emporium for women's garments. Mr. Frenkel was given credit for these goods, and a new invoice, covering the shipment of night-gowns more nearly suited to the needs of his trade, was made out.

The important point about the transaction was that it was a salesman who prevented the return of the merchandise, which, without his intercession, would undoubtedly have gone back to the house, requiring correspondence, shipping space, express charges and a lot of other trouble and expense.

GOODS ALMOST RETURNED, BUT INSTEAD MORE WERE ORDERED

In another case a dealer in a country town who had been sold an unusually attractive assortment of ribbons lost his nerve when the shipment arrived. It consisted of twenty-five pieces, and represented a bigger stock than he was accustomed to carry. It looked to him like more ribbon than he would be able to sell in a year. Without attempting to test his market for the goods, he decided to return them, as it would be impossible to send back only a part, because of the "average price" at which they had been sold.

Fortunately the salesman who had booked the order rolled in just about this time.

"We'll never sell this stuff in all the world," moaned the dealer, when urged to keep his courage and go ahead with the proposition.

"Yes, you will," returned the salesman, who proceeded to work out a plan for the display of the ribbon in May-pole style in the center of the store. A price of 29 cents a yard was put on the stock, which was labeled "Special." The attractive display, the prominent position given it, the suggestion that the ribbon was being offered at a special price, all combined to make every woman who entered the store give the assortment careful inspection. As it really represented the best that the market had to offer in the ribbon line, all widths and colors being included, and the assortment having been made up with special reference to the small-town trade, there was no difficulty at all about selling it.

In less than a week after the salesman started this merchant on a ribbon orgy, he had sold so much more than he thought his customers could possibly take care of that he sent in a repeat order for another assortment just like the first!

It took intelligent merchandising on the part of the salesman to convert a return-goods proposition into additional business—and the clever salesman is making a point of doing something of that sort nearly every day in the week.

It isn't altogether loyalty to the house or interest in his own drawing account that makes the salesman work his head off to see that a customer isn't stuck with goods that he has sold. It's a kind of professional pride in making good the selling talk that he handed out at the time the order was booked. He doesn't want to be reminded by the merchant that the goods he was so strong for proved to be shelf-warmers, but he is determined to vindicate his own judgment and that of the merchant who accepted his enthusiastic advice.

A few years ago, before cotton was selling at 30 cents a pound, a salesman carrying a line of men's cheap hosiery persuaded a small-town dealer that he ought to stock up heavily with a number that was intended to be sold at 15 cents. The dealer thought that his trade would be interested in the product, and ordered a lot more of that grade than he usually bought. When the salesman came around three months later, the dealer had most of the stock still on his hands, and was ready to feed the man who had sold it to him on a selected diet of potassium cyanide.

"Well, well, that's too bad!" said the salesman, mildly, after the merchant had expressed himself in picturesque language along this line. "We'll certainly have to do something about this."

He went back into the stock-room and took a look at the hosiery. He inquired among the clerks as to whether the goods had been featured in any way, thru newspaper advertising, window display, etc., and found that this was not the case. The low price of the goods had apparently made the dealer ashamed to push it, as the general character of his stock was above this level.

Then the salesman had an idea.

"This is Thursday," he said to the dealer. "I have enough business to keep me here until Saturday, and with your permission I want to put on a special sale that I think will help you get rid of these goods."

The merchant was interested, but refused to warm up appreciably.

"Go as far as you like," he replied.

The salesman explained his scheme, which was to put on a special stock sale at certain hours Saturday afternoon. From 3 to 5 o'clock was decided on, and it was agreed to display the hosiery in quantity in the principal windows on Friday and on Saturday morning. The merchant also agreed to use a portion of his newspaper advertising the following day to announce the sale.

The proposition was put up to the public as the result of a particularly large purchase of serviceable men's hosiery at an unusually favorable price; that the goods offered such an evident bargain that restrictions on their sale had been decided upon; that only during two hours Saturday afternoon would they be sold; and that each purchaser was limited to half a dozen pairs. It was also explained that the socks were especially suitable for workingmen, farmers, and others who needed a strong, durable product.

With this kind of sales work and advertising, the public descended on the store in droves Saturday afternoon, and it looked as if everybody was there for the purpose of buying 15 cent socks. The sale was so successful that the buyer melted completely, and gave the salesman the biggest order he had ever carried away with him from that town.

"And not only that," continued the salesman in narrating the experience, "but I was so impressed with the value of the 3-to-5 sale idea that I offered that particular number of our line to merchants who agreed to buy at least a gross, with the understanding that they must be sold only on Saturday afternoons and under the conditions outlined. I sold so many of these socks that the house finally wired me to quit taking orders, as they were completely sold up. I was the only salesman on the road, by the way, who had been able to do anything at all with the product."

FURNISHING MENTAL QUALITIES THE MERCHANTS LACK

Merchandising imagination is not possessed by all merchants, unfortunately, and that is why the salesman representing the manufacturer or jobber must supply it. The ordinary store, stocked with thousands of items, keeps its proprietor working with his nose rather close to the grindstone; and while he may have a definite idea regarding the failure of some particular product to sell, he doesn't always appreciate the fact that his own lack of enterprise in devising an effective sales plan is to blame, and not the merit of the article.

A salesman in trying to get a carpet order from a merchant in a small town in Indiana, happened to make the remark that he would give the retailer exclusive control of each pattern that he bought. Immediately, it occurred to the buyer that here was a splendid chance for him to get control of the whole line. Without expressing his thoughts to the salesman, he said, "I will take one piece of every pattern that you have." He neglected, however, to take the precaution of finding out how many patterns there were in the line. When the shipment arrived it nearly swamped the village. The merchant couldn't find room enough for all of the carpet in his store. He was obliged to pile many of the rolls on the grass outside.

The salesman happened to be passing thru the town again about this time and saw the pyramids of carpet dominating the landscape. It was a bright, sunny Saturday, and all the farmers were coming to town. The salesman suggested that the carpet be spread out on the grass. The display was so unusual and so commanding that very few farmers were able to resist the temptation to buy. This unusual purchase turned out to be the means of building up a splendid carpet business for the merchant.

FREQUENTLY AN OVERSTOCK CREATES BRISK SELLING

As a matter of fact, about one of the best things that can happen to a merchant is for him to buy occasionally a good deal more of a certain product than he is in the habit of ordering. If he properly displays and intelligently advertises his unusual purchase he is likely to compel unusual sales. This is a favorite method of the chain stores. Especially when they are introducing an article, they pile tremendous quantities of it around everywhere in the store. This forces people to see it, who would probably not notice it otherwise. It is a curious psychological fact that people buy more freely from big piles of merchandise than they do where scant displays are shown. This is a fact that salesmen do not always realize, and which they could use in showing retailers how to get rid of excess stocks.

Several years ago, a clothing salesman took on pennants as a side line. He had the new line but a few days when he called on a large dry goods merchant in a college town. He brought up the subject of pennants to the buyer. The latter said that he had received some calls for them and would be willing to try out a small shipment. He asked the salesman how much he should buy, but the salesman hesitated, not wanting to commit himself, and finally said, "That's up to you, Mr. Jones." "Well, then," said the merchant, "I guess I'll take $700 worth for a starter." The salesman made a brave attempt to control his emotions and to accept the order as tho it were a regular thing. The three or four other orders which he previously sold didn't amount to a hundred dollars altogether. The salesman tried to get out of town before the order was cancelled. As he was on the way to the station he was overtaken by the merchant, who had been running until he was all out of breath. The salesman was sure that it meant that he would have to bid good-by to the big commission which he thought he had made. But instead, the retailer said he wanted to have the order doubled. For the second time that day the salesman came close to dropping dead. He thought that the buyer was an idiot in disguise.

For a year or more after that, he didn't go back to that town, fearing if he did he would lose his life. One day he received a letter from the pennant house asking him why under the sun he didn't call on Jones, the dry goods man, any more. Jones, they told him, was sending in a mail order every couple of weeks. This woke the salesman up, and taught him a principle of merchandising which he has since used to good advantage. The merchant knew all along what he was doing. The tremendous displays of pennants which he was featuring brought him the college patronage and killed the business of his competitors, who were modestly offering pennants in small lots.

A REAL PARADE OF TOO BIG AN ORDER

This sales imagination is what helped the representative of a farm wagon concern to convince his dealer in a small country town that he had not overbought. In order to get a carload rate, the dealer had, in a moment of weakness, as he decided afterward, ordered a lot more wagons than he was accustomed to sell in the ordinary course of business. When the car arrived, and he began to figure up just what he had undertaken to do, he concluded that it was an impossibility.

He was philosophical, however. He knew that the wagons wouldn't spoil on his hands, and while he was inclined to make the salesman share the blame for his lack of judgment in loading up with so many more wagons than he actually needed, he did not tear his shirt over the situation when the salesman arrived a few days later.

"Have you unloaded the car?" he asked.

"No, it's still on the siding down at the station," replied the dealer.

"My suggestion," said the traveling man, "is that, instead of putting the wagons in stock as they are, we set them up, get hold of enough teams to pull them, and have a farm wagon parade thru town next Saturday afternoon. You can have some signs painted, announcing that this is the biggest shipment of Old Ironsides wagons that has ever been delivered here, and that your store is from now on Farm Wagon Headquarters in this town. Announce in the Weekly Democrat that the parade is going to be held, and come right down thru Main Street, big as life, when everybody is in town. If you haven't got time to make the arrangements between now and then, wait till court-day next Monday. You'll get a lot of advertising, and you'll probably sell some farm wagons."

The dealer knew a good stunt when he saw it, and he carried out the plan to the letter. When the salesman got back to that town a few weeks afterward, the dealer handed him a five-cent cigar without any preliminaries and admitted that he might have to re-order on farm wagons before the season was over.

The real salesman is the man who doesn't quit pushing after he has pushed his goods onto the floor or shelves of his customers, but works just as hard to push them off again, and into the hands of the users. That isn't always according to Hoyle—but it's a system that takes most of the tricks.

PRIZE WINNERS IN "CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS" CONTEST

THE following awards are announced by Dodd, Mead & Co. in the "Carolyn of the Corners" contest recently conducted by them; the contest was open to all members of the trade and the prizes were awarded for the best critical letters on the "look-up" book: 1st Prize, ($50) Mr. James D. Blake of Newbegin's, San Francisco, Cal.; 2nd Prize, ($20) Mr. A. D. Lyman of The Pilgrim Press, Boston, Mass.; 3rd Prize, ($10) Miss Margaret N. Norton of John Wanamaker's, Philadelphia; 4th Prize, ($10) Miss Effie C. Hubley of Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn; 5th Prize, ($10) Miss Anna Faith Taylor of Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

An elaborate campaign was carried out by the publishers in an effort to popularize the contest in the trade. The opening gun was a single page announcement in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for January 19, followed by a page in McClurg's Bulletin, another in the Baker & Taylor Bulletin, and a double page spread in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for March 9. In addition to this advertising campaign letters were sent out to the entire Dodd, Mead trade list, follow-up letters to the same list, and later a circular topped off before publication date with no fewer than five hundred advance copies of the book itself.

WINNERS IN A. B. A. SUGGESTIVE SALESMANSHIP CONTEST

THE following prize winners in the Suggestive Salesmanship contest conducted by the American Booksellers' Association have just been announced:

First Prize, $25, Helen Williston Thomas, care of Forsyth & Davis, Kingston, N. Y.;

Second Prize, $10, Anna C. Beers, care of S. Kann & Sons, Washington, D. C.; Third Prize, $5, Jerome E. Bruch, 681 5th St., New York, N. Y.; Consolation Prizes, four at $2 each: 4th, W. T. Machen, care of Holmes Book Co., 70 Third Street, San Francisco, Calif.; 5th, Miss Maude Abbott, care of W. B. Read & Co., Bloomington, Illinois; 6th, Frank X. Howard, 274 Shellman St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; 7th, Letitia V. Wood, care of J. K. Gill Co., Portland, Oregon.

The prize-winning papers will be printed in whole or in part in early issues of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

TRADE COMMISSION INVESTIGATING BOOK PAPER CONSUMPTION

THE first hint of a possible curtailment by Government action in either the kinds or quantities of paper used by book publishers appeared this week in the form of a questionnaire sent to book publishers by the Federal Trade Commission in connection with the general paper investigation now being conducted in Washington. Not only are publishers asked in the questionnaire to set down the kinds and quantities of paper actually used but they are requested to state the kinds of books they print, to indicate places in which waste is occurring in book-publishing at present, to state whether they cannot dispense with coated papers requiring English clay, and to suggest a committee to confer with the Government on paper matters affecting the trade.

Following is the complete questionnaire:

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, QUESTIONNAIRE FOR PUBLISHERS OF BOOKS

Kindly make your answers as accurate and complete as possible and return this schedule not later than April 10th, 1918. If the space provided is not sufficient attach additional sheets.

1. Name and address of concern.
2. Give in order of importance the kinds of books you print.
3. Give in order of tonnage consumed the grades of paper you use in printing books.
4. Give in order of importance the grades of paper used by you which you regard as most essential, and reasons.
5. State on what grades of paper used by you the consumption could be curtailed and the estimated percentage of curtailment that you think possible for each grade.
6. Name any forms of waste in the book publishing business that ought to be eliminated.
7. State what saving could be made by standardizing the size and quality of paper used in your publications and by reducing the weight of paper, etc.
8. Is it not possible for you to dispense entirely with coated or other high-grade papers requiring English clay?
9. Are you in favor of having a committee of book publishers appointed to co-operate and advise with the Government? If so, name three persons whom you think would be best qualified to serve on such committee.
10. What other suggestions can you give that will be helpful?

COAST DEALERS URGE MAINTENANCE OF DEPOSITORIES

AT a recent meeting of the booksellers of San Francisco the importance of the establishment by publishers of regular depositories on the Pacific Coast was discussed at considerable length. Among eastern publishers' representatives who were present as guests of the Association were H. V. Patterson of Harper's, G. V. Seiffert of Doubleday, Page & Co., Harry F. Hull of Dodd, Mead & Co., Andrew D. Pierce of Little, Brown & Co., and L. W. Adams of Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co. In the course of the discussion it was stated by representatives of the publishers that the Coast business of such houses as Harper, Scribner's, Macmillan, and Houghton Mifflin has increased noticeably since they have been carrying stock on the Coast and selling expenses have been cut down. One traveler even went so far as to state that his house was seriously contemplating the establishment either of a chain of such depositories or of a chain of bookstores thruout the country in order to speed up distribution.

Transportation difficulties—always trying to dealers on the Coast—have doubled and trebled in the last few months so that the primary problem confronting these dealers is said to be no longer that of selling more books but of getting books to sell. Despite the fact that the Coast has but five per cent of the population of the country it is notoriously one of the best book territories, absorbing, it is claimed, no less than twenty per cent of the total output.

At the close of the meeting Howard M. Boys, secretary of the local association, was instructed to take the matter up further with the local trade and then present it to the publishers.

WOMEN IN THE BOOK-TRADE

Some Facts Revealed by Questionnaire Sent Out by New York High School

SOME interesting answers have been received to the two hundred questionnaires sent out last fall by Miss Margery Gordon and Miss Marie B. King of the Julia Richmond High School for Girls in New York City, with regard to the numbers, positions and salaries of women in the book-trade of New York. The Julia Richmond High School has been contemplating the establishment of a course in book-trade training along with its other vocational training courses and the questionnaire was in the nature of a "feeler" by which to gauge the field. Ninety-three replies were received, of which eighty-two were favorable.

The eleven who did not report themselves as in favor of the course stated that they "employed no women," "needed no employees," were "not qualified to answer" or gave other reasons. A further summary of the answers to the questionnaire shows that the 82 firms employ the following number of women to whom this training would be an asset: 826 stenographers and clerical, 259 editorial, and 321 publicity, promotion and miscellaneous assistants. These firms could engage each year approximately 226 stenographers and clerical assistants, 27 editorial women, and 77 publicity, promotion and miscellaneous workers trained in the course.

In addition to the positions mentioned there would be open to trained women such positions as manager, assistant manager, publicity manager, sales manager, manuscript readers, etc.

The range of salaries revealed by the answers run from minimums of $6 to $15 a week to maximums of $25 to $100 a week.

In writing of their work Miss Gordon and Miss King, who make up a committee of two, say in part:

"We feel much gratified and encouraged by the results of our inquiry. We hope that at the not far distant future a course in book-trade training may be definitely offered as vocational equipment to the high school boy or girl who desires it. We desire particularly to express our gratitude to the publishers and booksellers for their very helpful response."

THE HOME SCHOOL FOR BOOKSELLERS

Conducted by Miss Bessie Graham of the Philadelphia Booksellers' School

LESSON XIII

Suggestive Bookselling

THERE are few lines of merchandise that do not offer opportunity for suggestive selling, for making one sale lead on to another. People who offer things for sale usually see to it that one sale incurs another. If you sell a victrola, there are always the records that must follow. If you sell notions, needles involve thread. In the same way, hardwood floors require rugs; tennis rackets demand balls. "Nothing in the (selling) world is single," and to a salesman, every sale should be inseparable from some other.

The field of bookselling affords a difficult opportunity for suggestive selling; difficult because the opportunity is not ready-made as in other fields, and because it must be devised by the salesman himself on the spot.

Every bookseller should take it for granted that people are more interested in subjects than in books. If he can suggest several books along the same subject that the customer is following, he can usually sell several books instead of one. For it is not enough to sell a customer the books he asks for. Suggestive bookselling is selling him the books he does not ask for.

The only way to do this is to group books in the memory. Never know books singly, always know them by their family. Every book has relatives. Make a point of knowing its "next of kin." No book begins its own ancestry; it always has forbears, and our critics never fail, as literary genealogists, to tell us from what it derives. There may be a few foundlings in literature, but even a book of unknown lineage has friends with which it can be associated.

Every bookseller knows the customer who expresses satisfaction with a book by asking for another "just like it." A customer's liking should be to the bookseller a likeness of the customer's mind, and for every book he has in stock, he should have another "just like it" ready. Let him say to himself, "People who like that sort of book, what other book of the same sort is there for them to like?" Suggestive bookselling might be called parallel bookselling, for it is simply the finding of a parallel book for every book there is.

Training in bibliography is the best training one can have for bookselling, for the reason that bibliography is nothing more than the gospel of the brotherhood of books. The brotherhood is sometimes one of blood relationship, as in the case of different books by the same author—children of the same parent. A bookseller should be an arsenal of titles in connection with every author's name. When the brotherhood is only a spiritual kinship, the memory is put to a greater test. It is more difficult to associate books with books than it is to associate books with authors. What the salesman should try most to do is to relate the new book to the old; the timely book to the standard; the upstart book to the classic.

The following questions and answers are offered as mental practice in suggestive selling. The answers are the merest suggestions, and it is hoped that readers will in every case better them.

What parallel books should you suggest in the case of each of the following purchases? In other words what book or books would go with this book, either to supplement it, clarify it, repeat it, companion it, or serve it?

BOOK-TRADE ASSOCIATIONS

President of Advertising Clubs to Speak at Convention

Mr. Herbert S. Houston, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs and vice-president of Doubleday, Page & Co., will be one of the speakers at the American Booksellers' Convention in May.

Boston Booksellers Hold March Reunion

The March dinner of the Boston Booksellers Association was held on Wednesday evening, March 27, at the Twentieth Century Club with an attendance of 140, ladies included. The excellent "home cooking" dinner upon which the Boston Association prides itself was, as usual, a "feature" of the occasion.

Plans were laid before the Association for participation in the Liberty Loan Parade of April 6. In addition to this Mr. Arthur H. Scribner, vice-president of Chas. Scribner's Sons, spoke on the need of co-operation between publisher and bookseller; Lieutenant E. M. Roberts, author of "The Flying Fighter," gave a vivid description of his thrilling experiences as an aviator—he told a good story well; Major E. Alexander Powell, author of "Italy at War," told of the work this country is doing in the various camps and gave several stories of his personal experiences on the various fronts; but it was Private Mack, author of "Shellproof Mack," who really carried off the laurels as well as the greatest number of laughs with his stories and anecdotes, so that by the end of the evening it was not the fault of the hilarious audience that they finished "America" five bars behind the orchestra.

The next meeting of the Association will be held on April 24.

Librarians and Booksellers of Chicago Dine

The Chicago Library Club held a dinner and smoker at the Atlantic Hotel, March 13th. The arrangements were in charge of the bookselling members of the club. Frank Morris of the Morris Book Shop acted as toastmaster and, following the dinner, informal talks were given by A. Kroch of the Kroch Book Store, Mr. Carleton of the Newberry Library, Mr. Andrews of the John Crerar Library, Prof. Von Noe of the University of Chicago, H. A. Gould, Frank Reilly and others. As indicated in the following verse, no shop talk was allowed:

They have promised, they have promised,
Not to speak of Six Best Sellers,
Not to talk of Peat or Empey
Or those other gallant hellers;
They'll refrain from conversation
On the discount and the rate,
And the publisher and seller
Will be eating from one plate.

They have promised, they have promised,
There will be no "clever talks,"
No post-prandial painful gassing
From those after-dinner gawks;
There's no joker in this smoker—
They have promised, and it's true,
So we know that you'll be with us
And we've counted on you, too.

More of the fun of the evening is reflected in the call by the toastmaster for George M. Chandler and Mr. Jacobsen of the University of Chicago to arise and show their countenances as the "two highest points in the library and bookselling professions"—these two gentlemen being the tallest individuals present.

Following this, Carl Roden, the newly elected librarian of the Chicago Public Library was called upon and he spoke at some length on the soldier library camps. He pointed out that four-fifths of the books now in these camp libraries are gifts from individuals, Chicago alone having contributed 180,000 volumes. Mr. Andrews of the John Crerar Library, who has visited several of the camps, supplemented Mr. Roden's talk.

The A. C. McClurg Co. presented a souvenir volume on Lincoln to each of those present.

OBITUARY NOTES

HENRY ADAMS, historian and author, died on March 27 at his home in Washington, D. C., in his eighty-first year. Mr. Adams, son of Charles Francis Adams, and a graduate of Harvard, acted as private secretary to his father when the latter was American minister at London, and later became assistant professor of history at Harvard. At one time he was editor of the North American Review. His best known book is "The History of the United States Under the Administration of Jefferson and Madison," 1889-91, for which he received the Loubet prize awarded in 1893. His other writings include: "Essays in Anglo-Saxon Law," 1876; "Documents Relating to New England Federalism, 1800-15," 1877; "Life and Writings of Albert Gallatin," 1879; "John Randolph," 1882; "Historical Essays," 1891; "Mont Saint Michel and Chartres," 1904; "Letter to American Teachers of History," 1910; "Life of George Cabot Lodge," 1911.

DR. HOMER BAXTER SPRAGUE, President of the University of North Dakota from 1887 to 1891, and long identified with educational institutions in New England, died in Newton, Mass., March 23, at the age of 89. He published the following: "Fellowship of Slave-Holders," 1857; "History of 13th Conn. Infantry," 1867; "Free Text-Books for Public Schools," 1879; "Anthony Comstock and Societies for the Suppression of Vice," 1882; "Money and Manhood," 1882; "High School and Citizenship," 1883; "Beecher's Metaphors and Similes," 1883; "Educational Party Needed," 1886; "Voice and Gesture," 1874-1903; "American Liberty," 1900; "The Two Parties," 1900; "The Assassination," 1901; "Alleged Law Blunders in Shakespeare," 1902; "The Nation's Honor Roll," 1902; "Right and Wrong in Our Civil War," 1903; "The People's Party," 1904; "Recollections of Henry Ward Beecher," 1905; "The True Macbeth," 1909; "Appreciation of Daniel C. Gilman," 1910; "War Pensions and Promises," 1910; "Cæsar and Brutus," 1911; "The Elevation of His Satanic Majesty," 1912; "Metrical Version of the Book of Job," 1913; "The European War—Its Cause and Cure," 1914; "Lights and Shadows in Confederate Prisons," 1915.

PERSONAL NOTES

AMELIA BARR celebrated her 88th birthday on March 31 by announcing the completion of a new novel dedicated to Samuel Gompers.

THE EXECUTORS' report places the present value of the estate of Richard Harding Davis at $50,375.11.

H. HUNTER ROBINSON of London, at one time manager of John Lane's branch in New York, and for the past fifteen years associated with T. C. & E. C. Jack, has joined the staff of Cassell & Co., Ltd.

WILLIAM ASPENWALL BRADLEY has terminated his connection with the Yale University Press, as head of a Special Typographic Department, to accept a commission as First Lieutenant in the Sanitary Corps, U. S. N. A.

ROBERT GORDON ANDERSON, well-known in the trade as a representative of G. P. Putnam's Sons, has an article in the current McClure's entitled "The Pull Together" in which he appeals to the brotherhood of traveling men to take an active part in the abolition of German propaganda as they travel up and down the country.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce that, owing to a breakdown in his none too robust health, Capt. Hugh Knyvett, author of "Over There With the Australians," has had to cancel all speaking engagements. Capt. Knyvett is in this country after being severely wounded on the Western front and invalided out of the service. So popular has he proved as a speaker that his publishers have been flooded with requests for engagements.

TO COMMEMORATE the completion of thirty-five years with Frederick A. Stokes Company, fellow workers of Maynard A. Dominick, treasurer, presented him with a loving-cup appropriately inscribed. On Saturday, March 23, at the Yale Club, a luncheon to celebrate the occasion was given to Mr. Dominick by his fellow officers in the Stokes Company. The guests invited by Messrs. Stokes and Morrow to meet Mr. Dominick were George T. Dunlap, Henry Hoyns, George L. Wheelock, Alexander Grosset, Samuel M. Loweree, John Macrae, Frederick Tufts, David McKay, J. W. Corrigan, Harry P. Burt, Horace S. Ridings, E. J. Clode and H. F. Savage. Aside from the tributes to Mr. Dominick by his associates and business friends, which were feelingly responded to, many interesting reminiscences of rivalries and friendships were related.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

GINN & Co. have issued a new and revised complete price list containing an announcement of their new publications.

A MOTION PICTURE VERSION of "Carolyn of the Corners" is soon to be released by the Pathé Film Corporation.

THE TITLE of a novel to be published this spring by Marshall Jones Co. has been changed from "Vain Adventures," as previously announced, to "The Queen's Heart." The author, who is said to have an international reputation, insists that his name remain hidden.

GEORGE BARTON'S "Mystery of the Red Flame," just published by the Page Co., has nothing to do with war-flames. The particular "flame" referred to is a South American diamond and the mystery can be imagined when one realizes that the author is a newspaper man whose hobby is crime and criminals.

A STORY which gives a close picture of the rush of war and reveals the slowly born convulsion in the heart of a bespectacled, likable young German surgeon when he meets a pretty French nurse, the very spirit of France, is "The Red Cross Barge" by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, just published by George H. Doran Co.

THE NEW EDITION of Dumas' "Love and Liberty" (Brentano's) was erroneously referred to by the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of March 16 as appearing "for the first time in an English translation." It has been found that a previous English translation was issued about 1870 by a Philadelphia publisher.

"OVER THE SEAS FOR UNCLE SAM" by Elaine Sterne, author of "The Road of Ambition," is to be published by the Britton Publishing Co., April 15. Miss Sterne has been working with the sick and wounded sailors sent home for hospital treatment, and it is their experiences and adventures which have furnished much of the material for this book.

MAJOR NEVIL MONROE HOPKINS' "Over the Threshold of War," a war diary covering the early months of uncertainty in the summer of 1914, is to be published shortly by Lippincott. The diary covers the period in which the author was attached to the American Embassy at Paris and a unique feature is the story of the author's being held at forced labor by a German patrol in Belgium.

"FACING THE HINDENBURG LINE" by Burris A. Jenkins (Revell) is a lively account of the 1917 campaign in Western Europe. Serving as Y. M. C. A. lecturer and war-correspondent, Mr. Jenkins could rove almost anywhere unhindered by red tape or restrictions, and his modest statement at the end of a brief preface speaks for the nature of the book: "I have written down what I saw and heard."

ROLAND G. USHER'S "The Winning of the War" published the last of March by Harper & Bros. is said to be an optimistic view of the war situation, and heaven knows the public needs all the hope there is nowadays! The author's optimism seems to be based upon reasonable analysis, and, with the added attraction of a frontispiece by the late Walter Hale, together with numerous maps, the book should have a ready market.

"TOWARD THE GULF" by Edgar Lee Masters, just published by Macmillan, may be called in a sense a successor to the popular "Spoon River Anthology." With possibly a wider range, as the sweep of its title suggests, this volume reflects the same understanding of human motives and character analysis that made Griffy the Cooper, and all the rest so alive and so true.

TARZAN, THE STRANGE ape-man of African jungles, about whom Edgar Rice Burroughs

READING IN A BOMB-PROOF
FROM THE COVER OF THE SPRING CATALOG
OF HERBERT JENKINS, THE LONDON PUBLISHER

has already imagined four tales of "more than oriental splendor," appears again in "Tarzan and the Jewels of Opar" to be issued shortly by McClurg. Once more Tarzan returns to the ruined city of Opar ruled over by the beautiful high-priestess La, this time to find what men have desired since the days of Midas.

A NEW book, "Face to Face with Kaiserism" by ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard, is being prepared for publication by George H. Doran Co. The new volume gives the Kaiser's warning to us about Japan and Mexico, uttered six months before the war broke out. It treats of the German spy system in Washington, and reveals, too, the psychological development of the German people during the war.

WITH OUR entrance into the war the necessity for a complete readjustment of individual points of view and canons of conduct has been forced upon the minds of all thinking people. What has it meant to us individually and in the ordering of our every-day lives and plans? How have we and those whom we love responded to this challenge? These are the questions answered by Arthur Train in "The Earthquake" (Scribner's), a novel of the day and the hour, which describes the adventures and reactions of a typical American family, and incidentally conveys much useful advice, inspiration, and wholesome fun.

THE FILM VERSION of Empey's "Over the Top," opened in New York this week, bids fair to prove as popular as the book has proved—or rather is proving, since the latter is in its 430th thousand and still going. Empey appears as the hero of the film which follows in part the narrative of the book, with "heart interest" and pro-German plotting thrown in. The battle scenes are among the best of the made-in-America fighting pictures yet seen in New York. Judging from the enthusiastic audiences at the New York performances, the film will mean even more sales for the book.

"JUST BEHIND THE FRONT IN FRANCE" by Noble Foster Hoggson (Lane) is not a record of trench life or military escapades, as one might imagine, but rather a reflection of the effect of war upon the people of France and upon French customs in general. Mr. Hoggson, of Hoggson Bros., New York builders, was a member of the American Industrial Commission visiting France last year. He has noted the make-shift inns, with shutters that must not be opened lest they knock down unwary passersby, and all the quaint differences in modes of living only realized when one has traveled thru a country.

DEMETRA VAKA, in every-day life Mrs. Kenneth Brown, in her "In the Heart of German Intrigue," published recently by Houghton Mifflin Co., makes many sensational disclosures in European politics including an account of what happened at the secret interview between the Kaiser and King Constantine in March, 1914. In the autumn of 1916, Mrs. Brown left America for Greece, her native country, in an attempt to reconcile Venizelos and King Constantine and save Greece for the Allies. Her book is a narrative of her adventures which included many interviews with the king, his ministers and generals and with Venizelos.

BOOKS FROM the library of the late William B. Clark of Colorado Springs and from other sources were sold on March 27 by Scott & O'Shaughnessy, 116 Nassau St., N. Y. C., making a total of $3500. Among the items were the following:

"Only a Curl," poem by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, written at Rome, April 4, 1861, for James H. Stone of Baltimore on the death of one of his children, and privately printed by him in that city, Chris Gerhardt, $67; "Hakluyt's Voyages," Edinburgh, 1885-90, Mr. Shields, $46; "Uncle Remus" by Joel Chandler Harris, presentation copy from the author, with inscription by him, William Gable, $32.50; "The Story of the Glittering Plain" by William Morris, Kelmscott Press, 1891, first book printed at the Kelmscott Press, F. W. Morris, $33; "Evangeline" by H. W. Longfellow, Boston, 1847, rare first ed., Mr. Hall, $37.50; "The Nuremberg Chronicle" by H. Schede, printed by A. Koberger in 1493, original ed. with text in Latin, Mr. Wyle, $165; "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by Harriet Beecher Stowe, Boston, 1852, first ed., in binding, by Riviere, Mr. Kirk, $60; "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies" by James McNeill Whistler, ed. by Sheridan Ford, N. Y., 1890, T. J. Gannon, $22.

THE COLLECTION OF Oscar Haywood, sold on March 13 at the American Art Galleries, totalled $5972. The highest price was $810, paid by Arthur Swann, agent, for an autograph letter by "O. Henry," Sydney W. Porter, twelve pages octavo, written some time toward the end of September, 1905, to Ethel Lloyd Patterson. It is said to be the most important autograph letter of "O. Henry" ever offered at public sale. The price paid is the record for an "O. Henry" letter. Other items sold as follows:

Original unpublished holograph manuscript of an autobiographical sketch by "Mark Twain," fourteen pages, octavo, about 1800 words, A. Swann, $540; "Love Songs of Childhood" by Eugene Field, New York, 1894, with autograph inscription by the author to Dr. Walmsley, A. Swann, $105; Original wash-drawing by Thomas Hardy of Marshall P. Wilder, with pen-and-ink inscription, A Swann, $1.30; autograph letter signed by former President William H. Taft, two pages, duodecimo, Jan. 17, 1916: "I am quite sure that Mr. Roosevelt has changed his mind as to some of his statements in introduction of my article on the Philippines. On the other hand, I don't think I could autograph some of his articles since," R. A. Heller, $102.50; Original pencil sketch of Oscar Wilde, with his autograph inscription, as he appeared in 1878 at Oxford, by an unknown artist, A. Swann, $150.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in MARCH, 1918

This Reference List includes and classifies all books entered in the annotated Weekly Record during the past month, together with additional titles not therein listed, covering law and medicine, many government documents, university publications, pamphlets, and books of limited character. All works are here entered under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in CAPS and SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics. Under subject entries asterisks () designate books previously entered in the Weekly Record, in most cases with descriptive annotation.*

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in caps, Q, O, D, etc.; for books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i. e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

FOR APRIL PUBLICATION

By the Author of the Very Popular
"HOW TO LIVE AT THE FRONT"

OVER HERE

By HECTOR MACQUARRIE, Lieutenant Royal Field Artillery. Price $1.35 net.

Serious and sprightly comments on America by a British Officer. This highly spiced, diverting volume of snap shots of America, is a species of camouflage on the part of a British officer for a desire to interpret America to his fellow-countrymen; he confesses also to "a definite hope that I shall succeed just a little in helping to cement a strong friendship between the two great nations."

What Did We Get for $25,000,000?

THE VIRGIN ISLANDS

OUR NEW POSSESSIONS and the BRITISH ISLANDS

By THEODOOR DE BOOY and JOHN T. FARIS. Price $3.00 net.

Describes everything one would wish to know about these Islands, which were formerly the Danish West Indies and recently purchased by our Government. Special features: Five magnificent maps made especially for this volume; over 100 original photographs; hints and suggestions to investors; complete information for travellers; entertaining sketches and stories of the history and romance of the Islands.

A New LUTZ Novel

THE ENCHANTED BARN

By GRACE L. H. LUTZ, Author of "The Best Man," "Marcia Schuyler," etc. Frontispiece in color. $1.35 net.

Mrs. Lutz has gained an enviable following of readers among an increasingly large class of Americans who enjoy spirited romances which are at the same time wholesome and of a character that can be recommended to every member of the family. Her books have been endorsed by clergymen, editors and educators of note. This new story is a particularly charming romance with a heroine as original as she is courageous and high-spirited.

A Remarkable War Book

OVER THE THRESHOLD OF WAR

Personal Experiences of the Great European Conflict

By NEVIL MONROE HOPKINS, Ph.D., Major, Ordnance Reserve Corps, United States Army. 66 illustrations. Many from snapshots by the author. Drawings documents and colored proclamations. Tentative price $5.00 net.

Written in a charming narrative style from a truly remarkable diary of the first few months of the great World War, taking the reader into the feverish atmosphere of England, Germany, Russia, France and Belgium, and back into Germany again during the dark days of the gathering war clouds, and in the early months of the crash which followed. The proceeds from the sale of this book will be donated by the author to the fund of the Belgian Scholarship Committee of which he is Chairman.

A New Volume in the Popular Training Series

TRAINING FOR THE STREET RAILWAY BUSINESS

By C. B. FAIRCHILD, Jr. Prepared under the supervision of T. E. Mitten, President of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit. Illustrated. $1.25 net.

In size and importance the street railway business is immense. It gives opportunities of employment to mechanical and electrical engineers, executives, draftsmen and many other workers. Mr. Fairchild presents the organization, the channels of advancement, the opportunities to use one's talents, and the needs for men.
